

Empowering university students to become the next generation of entrepreneurs

TiE University is empowering university students to become the next generation of entrepreneurs by educating, mentoring and inspiring university students to take intelligent risks in starting a business. TiE University brings together university entrepreneurs with successful business leaders across Oregon to perfect their pitch, develop their product or service and provide a holistic approach to their startup. The program culminates with a Global Pitch Competition that takes place at TiECon Silicon Valley, one of the world's largest investor conferences in the world.

"TiE U is additive to what our single university can offer. We have student teams create new ideas all the time and we provide them with tools and support to get their startups moving. TiE U, with its mentor program, puts them in a position to think on a global scale, create a network of like-minded people and have that professional experience of pitching to equity investors. It's a great next step for any student team."
